Paved Roads Help Everybody

War being what it is today, primarily an industrial enterprise manned by mechanics and fought with machine-tools, there is little optimism as to business benefits from the National Defense program throughout agricultural regions such as our own. But we would like to get a paved highway out of this program, such a highway as No. 29 — not a trunk line, perhaps, but the direct route between Barksdale Field at Shreveport and the East.

Had southwest Arkansas been as united on highway matters as certain other sections are we should have gotten action before now.

For instance, there has been united and relentless pressure brought to bear to keep construction rolling on No. 71, the Kansas City-New Orleans road through Texarkana. But there is no particular reason why this highway should outrank the alternate route which runs through Nashville and Hope to Shreveport.

If Nashville and Hope would stand shoulder to shoulder we ought to be able to get pavement on both No. 29 and on No. 4 which is the continuation of this road from Hope through Washington and Ozan to Nashville.

Trying to maintain a first-class gravel road on these heavily-traveled routes is a tragic business. Towns-men and farmers alike should be willing to lay aside all differences and work toward the common end of getting pavement in place of gravel.

I know some people in every town feel that a paved road takes business away from it to a larger city. Probably some folks in Nashville feel that a paved No. 4 would hurt Nashville and help Hope.

All I can say is that we have some people in Hope, too, who probably feel that paving No. 29 is a dubious business as regards the prosperity of Hope. They fear it will help Shreveport and hurt Hope.

Well, there's another side to the story—the side all of us believe in who are agitating more and better highways. You've simply got to believe that in a nation like America good highways always contribute to the material welfare of the people as a whole, and that each city and countryside will get its share of benefits.

Paving No. 29 may—and will—take some business from Hope to Shreveport. But it will be the kind of business we lose anyway—business that goes drifting off to Little Rock.

On the other hand, a paved No. 29 means quick access to Hope for all the folks who live around Lewisville and Stamps. . . . And in return, folks along the highway can get to Lewisville and Stamps more conveniently—and therefore more frequently.

Paved highways help everybody—as every real American believes.

Invention Made Jobs
Before accounting machines, in 1890, there were 159,000 book-keepers and accountants in the United States; in 1930 the number had increased to 931,000.

The only star constellation named for an insect is Musca, meaning "fly."

Records of the Corporation Commission's office showed the following assessments since 1933:

1933	$32,251,731
1934	28,976,689
1935	27,556,712
1936	24,284,430
1937	24,284,430
1938	26,114,960
1939	28,085,000
1940	28,650,130

The Missouri Pacific protested the 1938 assessment in United States District Court in St. Louis, contending that it should not exceed $16,658,976. The railroad's contention in 1939 was approximately the same.

The Corporation Commission, when announcing the 1940 proposed assessment, disclosed that the Missouri Pacific's own suggested assessment was $14,765,254.

Gov. Adkins

Proposes Conference on 1938-40 Assessments

LITTLE ROCK — A co-operative round-table conference between officials of the state and the Missouri Pacific Lines might settle the long litigation over the railroad's 1938-40 taxes in Arkansas, Governor Adkins said Thursday.

Referring to federal court actions brought by the Missouri Pacific to reduce assessed valuations fixed by the Arkansas Corporation Commission, the governor said:

"The Missouri Pacific is an institution in the state. It should be willing to have its representatives sit around a conference table with the attorney general and members of the Corporation Commission and seek a solution to the cases."

State Has Money for Fight
"Of course, if the railroad is unwilling to co-operate in this manner we have the money to continue the fight in court."

Mr. Adkins referred to an appropriation of $10,000 passed by the 1941 legislature for that purpose. Past costs have been paid out of the governor's emergency fund.

"An equitable settlement could be made in this manner," the governor continued. "But that phase of it will be up to the attorney general and Corporation Commission."

Governor Adkins, Attorney General Jack Holt and Corporation Commission Chairman Charles G. Miller probably will confer on the problem Friday.

Mr. Holt said he would be governed largely by the desires of the governor and the present Corporation Commission. But he added that he would not agree to a reduction of assessment below that of 1937.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

Windy March

March is the month of Mars, god of war, and has for several years been the month in which Hitler has made his bold strokes. But March has other claims to fame, as you will find when you answer these questions.

1. When did the idea of March fall, and who was told to beware of them?

2. If St. Valentine is honored Feb. 14, what saint is honored in March, and on what date?

3. What two animals are associated with the month of March?

4. A famous general who became President was born in March. Who was he?

5. Why is March 21 a ringed date on everyone's calendar?

Scenes From the Bitterest Battles on National Defense Strike Front

Car Southern Paper Unloaded

First Full-Car Shipment to Star From Lufkin, Texas

The first full-car shipment of newsprint manufactured from Southern pine pulp was received by The Star Friday from the Southland Paper Mills plant at Lufkin, Texas.

The Lufkin mill, first in the world to use Southern pine timber in the manufacture of newsprint (coarse white paper used by newspapers), began operations a year ago.

Two "fill-in" orders were received by The Star last year, but Friday's shipment was the first full-car order, as the newspaper's supply of 1939 Norwegian newsprint comes to an end. In 1940 The Star executed a charter four-year contract with the Lufkin mill, expiring January 1, 1944, and assuring the newspaper of a paper supply only 288 miles from here.

Friday's shipment totaled 43 rolls of paper, total weight being 41,508 pounds. The car was shipped by Cotton Belt and Missouri Pacific and was unloaded here by Hope Transfer company.

Nazis to Force Japs Into War

Say Japan Must Fight Actively Against Britain

BERLIN — (AP) — Japanese foreign minister Matsuo, here for talks with German leaders, must make up his mind whether Japan should enter the fight actively against Britain or be left to face Britain and the United States alone later, informed sources said here Friday.

Talk on Singapore, British stronghold in the Pacific was mentioned in connection with the subject of Japanese participation in the fight.

If victorious Germany and Italy might later show disinterest if the Japanese fail to take part, the sources said.

Refuses to Ratify 3-Day Old Pact With Germany; America Promises Aid If Attacked

Nazi Experts in Yugoslavia Flee to Border; Young Prince Peter Takes Oath Amid Cheering and Demonstrations

BELGRADE — (AP) — A defiant Yugoslavia, led by the 17-year-old King Peter, refused Friday to ratify the three-day-old Axis pact and received United States promise of aid if she is forced to resist German and Italian aggression.

United States Minister Arthur Lane delivered a note to the government which said under the terms of the all-out aid bill Yugoslavia would be given the same support as given to all other nations seeking to maintain independence to repel aggression.

Slav - Turkish Pact Proposed

Other developments Friday included:

1. The Turkish minister conferred with Premier General Simovic and was reported by diplomatic quarters to have proposed a mutual assistance pact with Yugoslavia. The Turkish press has been hinting at such agreements for the past two weeks.

2. German newsmen and economic experts began an exodus from the country. Reliable sources said that 3,000 had started for the frontier or packing in the hope of getting out of the country.

3. King Peter formally took oath of office at the orthodox cathedral.

The United States note was delivered to Yugoslavia's hardy soldier premier, Simovic, who was clumped into leadership Thursday.

Pact Contrary to Peoples Will

High diplomatic sources said Yugoslavia had informed Germany that fulfillment of the Axis pact signed Tuesday at Vienna by now ousted government leaders would be "impossible because it was contrary to the will of the people."

The cabinet was said to have decided in an all-night session to return to "full neutrality."

The United States note was delivered as 1,200,000 Yugoslav soldiers stood fully mobilized to resist the German and Italian armies if they should attempt anything.

Flags were still flying in the capital Friday and trucks filled with soldiers moved to the frontier.

U. S. Minister Lane told Premier Simovic that he was authorized by President Roosevelt to inform government that news of the Yugoslav action had caused immediate and popular reaction in the United States.

While Yugoslavia awaited the reaction of Hitler a disturbance in the cathedral where King Peter was taking oath was caused by Serb orthodox patriarch.

When the automobile of the United States and British ministers arrived at the cathedral, cheering crowds broke through the police who were vainly trying to hold them back. Many tried to shake hands and kiss the envoys.

After the ceremony crowds almost mobbed the car carrying U. S. military attache Col. Lewis Frazier, hoisting him on their soldiers and crying "long live Roosevelt; long live Britain and long live America."

Speaking of Aid —

The United States feels uneasy in the present course of sending arms and aid to one party to a war, while still firmly resolved not to take part in the war. It is a new technique, and we tend to think back to days when one was either in a war or not in it. So we feel uncomfortable in the present situation, and shy away from aggravating it.
It is indeed a strange technique.
But who introduced it?
The German flyers and technicians, the Italian "volunteers," who helped Franco win the Spanish war, the Russian technicians and morale-builders, who helped the Republic lose it, set the pace.
Interesting indeed is the accounting given by the Italian official Stefani news agency of certain details of equipment sent to Franco Spain during the civil war.

There were, Stefani reports, $375-000,000 in loans, very little of which has been paid back. There were 1900 cannon, 10,135 automatic arms, 7,514-537 artillery shells, 7683 motor vehicles, and 763 airplanes, to say nothing of two submarines, four destroyers, and four motor torpedo boats.
Ninety-one Italian warships engaged in Spanish war activities: 92 steamers forried the supplies; Italian submarines sank 72,800 tons of "hostile" shipping.
Italy was never "in" the Spanish war, of course, even when Italian-uniformed troops under Italian officers were taking active part in the campaigns. These were "volunteers."
But read over the list of equipment sent, which one presumes to be in addition to the equipment carried and used by the Italian "volunteers" themselves. Note how closely it parallels the kind of equipment which the United States has been selling to Britain, and which it is now proposed to provide on a "lend or lease" basis.
Surely there is going to be no complaint from Italy, Germany, or Russia about the United States supplying to a friendly power engaged in an international war the same kind of materials which all three of these states supplied to one side of a civil war within one country a few short years ago.
To be just, there has been little complaint. Having set the pace for such maneuvers, the axis countries have, by and large, conceded the right of the United States to supply Britain.
What might have been considered a "cause" for war a few years ago is no longer considered to be such. The kind of war now raging in Europe does not depend on the often-filmy
"causes" which pac-loving countries used to be so eager to avoid. This kind of war is often not even declared, but simply waged without warning whenever the aggressor country believes there is advantage to be derived from it.

America's Men of Science

Dr. W. D. Coolidge — Builds Giant X-Ray to Treat Cancer

This is the fifth of a series of 12 articles introducing you to America's foremost scientists.
If scientists had nicknames, Dr. W.
D. Coolidge would probably be called "X-ray" Coolidge. He is the inventor of the form of X-ray tube that is most widely used in medicine and experimental work.
In 35 years of experimental work at the famous General Electric Research Laboratories at Schenectady, N.
Y., Dr. Coolidge has made other inventions that have saved the American public millions of dollars. The familiar incandescent electric lamps that we switch on and off unthinkingly every day exist to a large degree in their present high state of efficiency and low first cost because of Dr. Coolidge's success in making tungsten so ductile that it could be drawn out into the fine filaments that became heated and produce the light.
His X-ray tubes range from small ones that can be carried about or used in cramped quarters to giants that occupy whole rooms or even whole buildings. The larger tubes are used for cancer therapy or experimental work. He has also produced cathode ray tubes that are capable of shooting forth powerful streams of electrons, making possible a whole new line of research.
Now Directs "House of Magic"
Presiding over General Electric's
"House of Magic," as the advertising writers call the G. E. research laboratories, Dr. Coolidge is also a director and co-ordinator of other scientists' researches.
Dr. Coolidge is one of the pioneers in industrial research. For many years he worked with Dr. Willis R. Whitney, who built up the GE research laboratories. When Dr. Whitney retired in 1932, Dr. Coolidge succeeded him as director. He is also a vice president of the company.
Dr. Coolidge was teaching and investigating at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the early years of the century when Dr. Whitney "discovered" him and persuaded him to give up an academic career to enter a commercial laboratory.
Young Dr. Coolidge was promised that he could spend at least half his time on research that did not seem to have any direct practical application.
Curiosity Pays Profits
As a matter of fact, this so-called "pure" research has in the long run been very productive of practical developments. Many of the most useful accomplishments in Dr. Coolidge's great cradle of industry were born of scientific curiosity and fundamental researches.

A lovely affair of Thursday was the dinner party in the main dining room of the Barlow given by Luther Holman for Miss Harriet Ann Pritchard, who is leaving Sunday for Washington, D. C.

Living Cost Is Car Sale Factor

Fails to Climb in Relation to Wage Increase

Noteworthy but unmentioned upon explaining the soaring sales of new and used cars has been the failure of the cost of living to climb in relation to wages, according to D. U. Bathrick, general sales manager of Pontiac Motor Division.

Interpreting a national scale of living index, Bathrick points out that the spread between wages and living expenses has reached a record high. A family which earned $120 a month in 1933, according to the index, now earns $157.49 at the same job. However, in 1933 this hypothetical family spent every cent of wages to live because living expenses and wages were parallel. Today while the family is earning $157.49 it is spending for living expenses only $130.76 for the same standard of living.

This widening margin between income and outgo for routine living certainly is being reflected in automobile sales," Bathrick commented. "In the case of this hypothetical family there is a cumulative margin of $27 a month—more than enough to finance the purchase of a new car. "That this money is being diverted into the purchase of new and used cars and other consumer goods is quite evident from sales figures in the industry which continue to set records, month after month."

Mrs. George T. Newbern Sr. of Marianna, Arkansas, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Newbern Jr., was the inspiration of a lovely afternoon party given by Mrs. Newbern on Thursday afternoon.

SERIAL STORY

DOLLARS TO DOUGHNUTS

BY EDITH ELLINGTON

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY Anthony tells her about himself, how his parents died when he was still in school, how his father's friend educated him. He almost admits her real identity, but doesn't. He fears the knowledge might hurt Anthony's love for her. She does not know Grandfather Hunt, a policeman, until she meets him from the park.

HE LOVES ME!

CHAPTER XVI

IN the morning, Beatrice regarded her black stock dress with dissatisfaction, before she put it on.

"I want to look beautiful for Anthony," she thought. "I want a dress like some of those at home."

All those dresses, hanging in the closets in the apartment at Park Avenue, were as far away as if they were on some other continent. The jewelry in the antique silver box, the rows of slippers and hats, were useless now.

"All I've got is this. Yet Anthony fell in love with me. He didn't fall in love with my clothes, or my haircomb, or my car. I have nothing. Nothing at all. He fell in love with me."

"What time did you get in last night?" Toby demanded, from the kitchen where she was pouring coffee. "Terry stayed until didn't come."

"Another day. As they say in the army, another day, another dollar. A million days, a million dollars. Oh, Vera, what in thunder were you and Terry fighting about? You kept me awake."

"The same old thing," Vera shrugged. She looked more beautiful than ever, this morning. Her brown eyes had such thick, silky lashes, and her five-foot-nine inches of lovely curves under the navy blue crepe illustrated afresh why she was constantly phoned about modeling jobs which she never took. "If I married Terry, I'd live on 16-millimeter film, served up with burnt-out flash bulbs."

"You're such a far-seeing wench," said Toby. "Why do you pick up these wet snacks and then make them miserable because you can't marry them?"

Astonishingly, Vera's red lips twisted and her eyes filled with tears. "You know why!" she cried harshly. "Lend me a dime for carfare and shut up!"

AFTER she was gone, Beatrice looked at Toby, bewildered. "Vern," Toby explained slowly, "is in love with Jake Simon. He's half her size, and has a shrewish little wife."

"Jake Simon?" Beatrice said, an invalid as a personal service for March.

The members attending were Bobby Joyce Formby, Ella Joe Ediston, Rose Dosset, Margaret Bush, Mary Joe Dickinson, Maxine Hatcher, Margaret Phippin, Phyllis Williams, Mary Roy Moses, Maxine Boyette, Frances Holman, Norman Jean Duke, Anna Faye Thrash, Marilyn Erwin, Barbara Sue Walker, June Duke, and Mary Helen Crosby.

Miss Montez Elmore will arrive home Friday from Ochslebach college, Arkadelphia, to spend the spring holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Elmore.

Mrs. Robert LaGrone, Mrs. Frank Nolan, and Mrs. P. D. Smith of Dallas are spending Friday in Hot Springs and seeing the races and Oklahoma Jockey club.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Cox are also Friday visitors to the races in Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Rettig and Mr. and Mrs. George Christopher flew to Fayetteville Wednesday to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Betty Hospitalier. They returned Friday.

Mrs. Lile Moore and Mrs. R. V. Herndon Jr. are in Hot Springs Friday seeing the races.

Home Run Mark Is Easy for Pitcher

By NEA Service
NEW YORK Some National League pitcher who is handy with the stick can get himself a record this year by hitting seven home runs. The record, set by Hal Schumacher of the Giants, is six.

Last year not a single hurler in the senior circuit could collect two homers. Only Schumacher, Curt Davis, Claude Passeau, Charley Faye, Lon Warneke, Bucky Walters, Harry Gumbert, Joe Bowman, Truett Sewell, Whit Wyatt and Carl Doyle got even one.

Catcher-Coach

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Edward (Doc) Munion, catcher, is always on the third base coaching line for the Michigan State College baseball team. There's a reason. Doc is a successful coach and manager in his own right. Last summer he piloted the East Lansing boys' team to the championship of the Michigan NYA league. A star pitcher of the team was Jack Kobs, son of Coach John Kobs of the Spartan nine.

In Japan, seaweed is being converted into artificial wool by a factory which turns out five tons of the product daily.

midnight baseball game.

"I've heard that name somewhere before, haven't I?"

"He's my boss. Every season his firm almost goes under, and getting paid now and then. That's why she won't work anywhere else, don't you see? She could make thousands if she'd only take the fashion and posing jobs that come her way! But"

Toby washed the coffee cups viciously. "Dear old Huntington's keeps Jake Simon so broke he can't buy his wife off with alimony. They keep cutting prices, threatening to buy somewhere else, and that would ruin him. A lot of the better dresses upstairs are his."

"Oh, it's a mess! Vera's loyal, and Jake's really a swell guy, if weird looking. Anyway, that's just one of the things that makes me hate Huntington's! What that store does to people's lives!"

Beatrice averted her face, carefully. "I didn't know Huntington's was such an ogre. What else does the store do?"

"It would take me a week, Getz, for instance. No pension. And all those hardworking sales in the office, who do Bruce Sheldrake's job for him at about one-twelfth the salary. And manufacturers like Jake, pushed to the wall because Huntington's pares prices to the bone."

"Maybe that's the management," Beatrice suggested slowly. "Perhaps the people who own Huntington's don't know about—"

"You mean the Duchess?" Toby inquired shortly. "Huh! That dame's so busy keeping an Italian prince, or whatever he is, she hasn't time to find out about all the girls' own age and just as good as she is, too, who live on nothing and work like slaves so she can run around to Palm Springs and Hawaii and South America. Did you see that in the paper?" She went to South America."

Beatrice's throat closed up. "We'll be late."

AS she hung up her things in her locker, she longed for and dreaded the moment when she would see Anthony. Her face burned, remembering their kiss. Would it be the same, when she saw him again?

She thought, too, of what Toby had said. Soon now she'd have to end this masquerade. She'd have to do something about improving the management of the store.

But then she wondered what it would do to Anthony, finding out who she was. Would he hate her for deceiving him? Once he had asked her, "Are you trying to make a fool of me?" Please,

THE FINE CAR WITH THE LOW PRICE

THIS ADVERTISEMENT is addressed to those owners of lowest-priced cars who have often wished they could own a Pontiac, but never felt they could afford one. Its purpose is to tell you that you can afford a Pontiac and to show you why you can. First, Pontiac, far from being an expensive car, is actually a low-priced car—in fact, just a very few dollars more than "the lowest-priced three." As a result, your present car will, in all probability, easily cover the down payment on a Pontiac.

Second, if the size of your monthly payment is an important item to you, you may easily arrange the number of payments so that the amount of each payment fits your pocketbook. No wonder former lowest-priced car owners are saying: "Monthly payments on my Pontiac are so little more I hardly notice the difference!"

What's more, many owners will tell you that in the long run, you actually pay no more for a Pontiac—you simply invest a little more, because you will eventually get those few extra dollars back again in a higher allowance at trade-in time! See your Pontiac dealer today!

Wrong Right

Never retouch ceiling or wall cracks or spots without repainting the entire wall surface, since retouching accents the faults. It's only natural for cracks, spots and dirt to mar the walls and ceilings of any home that's being lived in. But there's no excuse for permitting these things to go on and on—not with our paint and wall-paper stocks so large and our prices so low.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

Minister, J. A. Copeland

Since we have been greatly strengthened in the meeting that just closed, I believe we are in better condition to carry on the work of the Lord, than ever before. So we appeal to all of the members of the church, to be present in every service, and of the disciples.

The sudden arrest and trial and crucifixion of Jesus had plunged them all not only into sorrow and gloom, but into despair. The allegiance to Jesus had never been entirely dissociated from the belief that He was going to set up an earthly kingdom in which they would have prominence and power.

Even to the very last, in spite of the words in which Jesus sought to warn them of the tragic events that were impending, they held to this belief. The disappointment of that belief may have had much to do with the temporary defection of Peter when three times he denied his Lord. That temporary defection was slight in comparison with the apparent disappointment when they saw their Master led away to be crucified, with no power intervening to save Him.

A strange sense of wonderment and loyalty persisted, in spite of their disappointment.

The two disciples who walked in sadness on the way to Emmaus indicated something of this regretful longing when they said, "We trusted that it would be He who would redeem Israel."

But even those words of sad longing expressed something that they realized was gone.

Then suddenly, what a change took place! There came the stories of those who had seen the risen Lord, of the women at the tomb, of other appearances, and now the strange figure who joined the two sad travelers on the walk to Emmaus and who conversed so freely and sympathetically with them concerning the events that had brought them to the verge of despair.

Words cannot begin to express the strangeness and power of the experience as their Companion was made known to them in the breaking of bread, and they realized that they had been walking and talking with their risen Lord.

These are difficult things to understand. They bring us into a world of mystery that is beyond our ordinary experiences and comprehension. Yet, how otherwise can one account in this miracle that happened in the lives of the disciples as despair gave way to hope and disappointment vanished under new faith.

The commission that Jesus gave to His disciples to go forth and teach, making disciples of all nations, would have had little power if it had not been for these experiences that revived all the faith and enthusiasm and courage with which the men whom Jesus called to follow Him had in the first place left their nets, and government jobs, and other occupations, to give to Him their full allegiance. With this is the miracle of this religion, first manifested by a small group of earnest men, which has become our worldwide Christianity.

What miracles the world may yet see if we hold firm to our faith in love and truth, at a time when hate and violence again seem to have conquered and plunged the world in darkness.

Refugee Slavs Are Elated

Flowers Thrown on Spot of Alexander's Assassination

MARSEILLE, France.—(P)—Shouting "long live Yugoslavia" an estimated 10,000,000 French refugees poured into the Place de la Bourse Friday where the late King Alexander was assassinated in 1934.

The unscheduled demonstration came after word whispered through the city that anew anti-Axis government had been formed.

Early Friday people began to drop bouquets at the scene of the assassination and at the monument of the young king.

200 police were called to halt the procedure and crowds gathered.

As the demonstrations grew louder members of the Yugoslavia colony here began to decorate the monument to Alexander.

When the police lines kept the crowd from the plaque the people boarded trolley cars and tossed flowers.

for the worst?

Well, it's simple. Just: Speak affectionately of your mother-in-law.

Say you haven't any fault to find with your maid.

When they start playing the "George won't eat this" game, admit your husband eats everything and likes it.

Say that you like your husband's taste in presents, and that you've never once wished he had given you the money instead.

Manage to keep your figure slim, while never turning down a desert in public.

Let it be known that your husband takes you hunting with him and that you go along, not just to be a good sport; but because you enjoy it as much as he does.

When Mrs. Jones' taste in decoration is being panned, say that you think her house is lovely.

Appear to enjoy your children rather than regarding them as "problems."

Act Contented With Your Lot

Let it be known that your children haven't tied you down—that you still can manage to go on a trip with your husband occasionally, and that you still have some time for your own interests.

Arrange your life just to suit your family and yourself, remaining completely oblivious of the Joneses.

"The girls" will resent you, all right. It is downright irritating for any woman to be that calm and contented with her lot, and that free of jealousy.

If you want to get on with "the girls" you'd better let on that your husband, in-laws, children, maid and your own weight all are problems that get you down. Then "the girls" will accept you as one of them.

Two Novels Take Their Inspiration From New England

As refreshing as an Atlantic breeze and as fragrant as a New England garden, is "Singing Beech" (Harpur; $2.50), first novel of Elizabeth Foster.

The story, set on a tiny island off the coast of Maine, revolves around a mysterious English couple who have leased Juniper cottage. Nicholas Chadbourne, a charming artist, and his beautiful wife, Edwina, captivate the aristocratic natives. Nicholas particularly fascinates Linda Heelstone, who not only finds her own dormant artistic talent but inspires his as well.

Maiden Aunt Harriet, once disappointed in love, is the island gossip, but she is always the last to discover the juiciest morsels.

The book has enough mystery and enchantment to offset and cover the inconsistencies of the characters in the closing chapters.

"Unfinished Tapestry," by Dascomb Atwood (Liveright; $2.50), is the story of the Boston Prebles, transplanted into the whirlpool of New York.

Anne Preble, mother of three married children, can foresee catastrophe in her family, and she decides it will be better if she and her aged husband are away when the storms break. So Alfred and Anne spend a year cruising around the world. And while they are gone, everything that could possibly happen to one family happens.

There are deaths, marital estrangements, divorce and financial disaster. Anne sees it build up in the letters she receives from home, and she tries to hide it from Alfred until the burden becomes too great. She comes home to a world that has crumbled.

What happens after that seems a little too miraculous, but it brings the

Preparations in Pacific Against Japan Appear Best Reason Fight Won't Come Off

WASHINGTON.—If you like to bet a few bucks on a long shot now and then, you might care to take a chance in support of the guess that there won't be any war with Japan for either the British or the United States for some time to come. Your ordinary horse sense should give you the necessary conviction to play this hunch.

Warlike preparations there will be. Lost of them. With plenty of shadow boxing, shouting, threatening, moving about of battleships, troops, guns, airplanes, building of new bases for submarines, naval patrols, diplomatic feinting in official statements, strengthening of all the fortifications from Singapore to San Diego. Everything leading right up to open hostilities. But not the hostilities.

All the preparedness for war in the Pacific, on the part of both the British and the United States, is perhaps the best reason why the actual fighting won't come off. Every move Japan makes toward expansion to the south and east has so far been effectively checked by the whites, the Dutch in the East Indies, Britain in Malaya, Australia and New Zealand, the United States in the Philippines, Alaska, Guam and the other American island possessions in the Pacific, including Hawaii.

Diplomats Mere Men

The best of observers in Washington are of the opinion that the Japanese government itself does not know what its program in the Pacific is to be, any more than the United States government knows what its program is to be in Europe.

Officially, we have stated that our program is to stay out of war in Europe, but we don't know that we're going to be able to do it. Officially, Japan has stated that her program is to take over all of Oceania and the Orient, but she doesn't know that she'll be able to do it.

Both these doubts are based on the seldom-admitted but none the less true confession the best of diplomats will make in confidence—they aren't superhumans, they don't have all the information they should have in making decisions of policy, and plenty of things just don't happen according to Hoyle.

Japan's own uncertainty as to her future is no greater than the uncertainty of any other country—Britain, France, Germany, Italy or the United States—as to where it will be one year hence. There are, in Japan's case, additional elements of uncertainty in plotting courses of destiny. There are the conflicting elements of army, navy, foreign office and home factions warring in the government. Shortage of food, shortage of strategic materials, threats of economic boycotts from the United States, the necessity of carrying on story to a conclusion that should satisfy nearly everyone.

It just Breathes a little Deeper and Wades In!

EVER stop to figure why Nature gave you both a nose and a mouth to breathe through?

Your nose, barring colds, does all right for ordinary purposes.

But go up against some heavy exercise—and you can open up your mouth as well and increase the intake of oxygen.

Your 1941 Buick with Compound Carburetion* works something like that.

Its "nose," which is the forward one of your two thrift-size carburetors, does a grand job of supplying "breath" for your engine on normal jobs.

But when the time comes that your engine has to dig in for a tough pull or a burst of power, then your extra foot—pressure on the gas treadle opens up the "mouth" and your engine "breathes" through two carburetors.

Simple, isn't it? Yet look what happens:

Your engine always consumes gas according to the need.

By simply taking it easy when easy does it and breathing deep when the work piles up, your power plant gets as much as 10% to 15% more mileage from the same gasoline.

That, in these days, is nothing to be sneezed at.

So why don't you get the whole story from your Buick dealer?
